BEGINNING OF BETTER BABY MOVEMENT SEEN IN RACE FOR HONORS AS BEST INFANT

Parents of Late Entrants Are Awakening to the Meaning of the Great Contest of Southern California Children

SIX HUNDRED LOCAL MEMBERS TO DATE

Coming Event to Be Milestone in the History of the Little Ones of Glendale and Valley District in the Years to Come

Late entrants are coming into the best baby contest whose parents have just wakened up to the importance of the affair and what the baby record of Glendale and its sister communities means to this district. It is but the beginning of a better baby movement which is likely to bring wonderful results to the locality and the state at large. The six hundred who will constitute the list will be like charter members in this far-reaching movement which will mean so much to the future of Los Angeles county.

Included in the list are now:

CAMPAIGN FOR WRIGHT BILL ORGANIZED

Committee Meets at Christian Church Prepared for Action

There was a meeting of the Glendale committee of the Wright bill campaign committee, Tuesday evening at the Christian church, which was presided over by Mr. R.
Kitterman, vice-chairman of the committee.

Unfortunately the permanent chairman, Hartley Shaw, was prevented from attending the meeting.
Mr. Kitterman discharged the duties of his office.

The discussion centered on the question of registering the dry voters of the city and getting them to the polls on election day.

To this end a committee consisting of R. F. Kitterman and Mr. Rex
C. Kelley was appointed to attend the meeting of the Glendale Ministerial association for the purpose of urging the pastors of the city to give the widest publicity in and through their church services and members to the importance of everybody registering before October 7, in order that as large a vote as possible may be polled for the Wright bill.

A committee on organization of the city's precincts for this campaign was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Rex C. Kelley, Floyd Mercer, Dr. Glickerson, A. W. Tower and N. H. Stanley.

A committee on publicity was appointed, consisting of W. D. Root, R. W. Munson and W. B. Kirk.
It was decided to call a mass meeting for October 9, at 7:30 p. m. in the Christian church, at which plans will be outlined for the furtherance of this campaign in favor of the Wright bill.

For the information of the public
it might be stated that the Wright bill is entitled "The Wright Anti-Bootlegging Act." It was introduced by T. M. Wright January 21, 1921, was passed by the legislature, and signed by the governor. It was referred by the liquor interests and is to be voted upon by the people November 7, 1922.

It is an act designed to impose upon all state officials the duty of enforcing the Volstead act which was passed by congress to enforce the provisions of the Eighteenth amendment.

UNLOADED GUN CLAIMS YOUTH AS VICTIM

Raymond Franklin, aged 21 years, of 346 North Adams street, police say, was accidentally shot in the neck yesterday afternoon by Kenneth Peterson, a companion.
Immediately after the accident the injured young man was rushed to the Glendale sanitarium, where an examination proved that the wound is not serious and that the victim will recover.

The two young men were playing with the 38 calibre revolver in the garage of the Franklin home.
The gun was supposed to have been unloaded at the time of the accident. While it was in the hands of Peterson, the trigger was pulled, it is claimed. The injury of young Franklin came as a result of the discharge. The matter was investigated by Chief Fraser.

TAG DAY IS ORGANIZED AT C. OF C.

Committee Tells Directors
Its Plans for Next Saturday

WOMEN ORGANIZING

Response to the Call for Workers, Meeting With Ready Response

By ALBERT MARPLE

The community tag day fireworks have been organized. The muster roll of Saturday's event, which will doubtless prove to be the biggest thing of its kind ever held in Glendale, was filed at the meeting of the Tag Day committee at the chamber of commerce yesterday afternoon. The heads of all the women's organizations of the city were invited to attend and the wonderful response to that invitation shows conclusively that every section of Glendale is interested in the electrification of the Glendale avenue line.

From the opening bell this community tag day meeting, which was presided over by Mrs. H. E.
MacMullin, was filled with enthusiasm. It was a "go-getter" meeting from start to finish. The talks made by the various ladies from the different sections of the city proved that the folks of the various localities are awake to the value the proposed line will be to Glendale.

At yesterday's meeting it was decided to have tags of three designations, these being 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. The tags will be red, white and blue in color. The suggestion has been made that a yellow tag be sold at 10 cents, the idea being that "every little tag will have a meaning of its own."
J. P. Hayselden gave an account of the railroad proposition to date.
He told of the amount of money already pledged, of the amount that must still be raised to insure the construction of the line and of the various details connected with the electrification proposition. James Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce told how anxious he is to see the railroad go over and said he would do all he could to assist. President Hollister of the chamber stated informally, after the meeting, that the entire working force of that organization is at the disposal of the tag day committee at any time it is needed.

The motion that the three prices be charged for the tags was made by Mrs. Ernest J. Morgan of the Tuesday Afternoon club, and was seconded by Mrs. Yoeman of the W. T. U.

"The pride of the people of Glendale should compel them to buy a tag on Saturday," said one of the ladies at the meeting yesterday. "It will be a terrible blow to Glendale in the eyes of the outside world if this railroad proposition falls through. The failure of a proposition of this kind is unheard of. We have got to put this thing over. There are hundreds of people in this city who have not given a penny toward this line, which anyone can see will be a benefit to the whole city. Are these people pikers? Are they yellow? Are they willingly trying to put the burden of this line on the other fellow? I believe not.
The fact of the matter is, they have not awakened to the realization of what this line means to Glendale. We are trying to make them see these things, feeling sure that when they do they will "come through." Tag day should not be used by anyone as an excuse for not giving larger amounts than they should give. This will simply be an additional "investment."
If everything else fails, civic pride should do the trick.

"We're going to put this community tag day over in grand style," said Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman of the tag day committee, this morning. "This will be the closing gun of the campaign and we are going to make it not only the loudest, but the biggest, financially. We'll make a lot of noise, but when the returns are counted it will be seen that there has been something to the drive besides racket."

"We need workers on tag day—lots of them. In fact, we have got to have them. These must come from every section of the city.
Those wishing to help may get in line by calling any of the following names: Mr. Hayselden, Glendale 1657; chamber of commerce, Glendale 1232; Dr. Jessie A. Russell, Glendale 1141-W, and Miss Eva Daniels, Glendale 911-M."

Another meeting of the community tag day committee will be held at the chamber of commerce on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.
The tags, which are being donated by S. W. Strang of the International Chemical company of this city, are now being printed and will be ready for distribution to

LET GLENDAL CITY DON THE LAST TAG

In Glendale, one of the most prosperous growing cities of the United States, an exhaustive effort is being put forth by a group of earnest public citizens to collect $25,000 with which to bring into the city an electric line which will cut the railway fare and open up a huge territory adjacent to the city.

Nearly the entire amount has been collected. There remains a few thousand dollars, the last and the hardest to get.

The proposed tag sale will help a lot but it will not be possible to finish the financing in that way.

Is there any reason why the city council should not give enough money to complete the fund after returns from the tag day sale are in?

The city as a whole will benefit enormously from this street railway line and if this plan is followed the citizens as a whole will have a share in its fulfillment.

The city council as a body have taken no action as far as we can learn.

Why? The interrogation is not that of the Glendale Daily Press. It is that of its more than five thousand subscribers, of its more than fifteen thousand readers.

The Glendale Daily Press has been endeavoring to find out why.

The best that could be learned is: That while the city of Glendale could subscribe and close the fund—it would take a lot of trouble in the transferring of funds!

In a letter from one of the many readers of the Glendale Daily Press, in "The Voice of the People" today, is expressed the sentiments of the Glendale Daily Press, and the sentiments of those subscribers and readers who have written to their own newspaper.

Why is the city government not galvanized into activity when such an opportunity as this is presented to all the people and all the city?

If there is logical reason why the city should not pay the few thousand dollars necessary to close the fund campaign—let us all have it.

If the city has no money under its budget for the purpose it could be added to next year's budget.

THE NEW FIRE ENGINE PURCHASE IS ALSO
UNFUNDED IN THE BUDGET. IT WILL BE PAID FOR OUT OF NEXT YEAR'S BUDGET.

Certainly the railway company would be willing to accept the city's I. O. U. If not, a body of citizens could take care of the obligation until budget funds were available.

If the city government refuses to act it will be bad advertising for the city.

SATURDAY WILL BE TAG DAY FOR THE ELEC-TRIC LINE. WHEN THAT DAY ENDS AND THE
TOTALS ARE CAST UP THE GLENDAL DAILY PRESS, ON BEHALF OF ITS READERS, SUGGESTS THAT THE CITY OF GLENDAL MAKE UP THE DEFICIT THAT MAY REMAIN AND CLOSE UP THIS MATTER WITH CREDIT TO THE CITY—even if attained in the eleventh hour.

Artists furnishing the fifth of the all-star programs Monday night on the Press-Newton radio review, were all from Burbank.

Mrs. Phillip McKellar, contralto, sang "Mary of Argyle," and other Scotch selections. She was accompanied by Grace Lovejoy at the piano. Mrs. McKellar is practically a newcomer in this country as she has been here but six months, coming direct from Scotland. However, she sang twice before over the Press-Newton station.

Mr. Paul Kent, tenor, sang "Invictus" and "O Sole Mio." He was also accompanied by Grace Lovejoy. Mr. Kent sang before via KFAC and is well remembered by the fans as he is the possessor of a wonderful voice and has excellent articulation.

Dr. V. P. Ervin, saxophonist, played "Simplicity," and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from the opera, "Samson and Delilah." Dr.
Ervin is an eye specialist and was formerly connected with Dr. Steelman. He is now in business for himself having an office in Burbank. Dr. Ervin was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Stella Ervin, at the piano.

Grace Lovejoy, noted violinist and music teacher of Burbank, entertained the listeners with two selections played on her sweet-tinted violin. The selections were "Adoration" and "Mazurka," by Milnaroski. She was accompanied at the piano by Alice Gratia.

Work was started this morning on the new warehouse for the public service department of Glendale.
This building is being erected at the rear of the city hall. It will house the operating and construction department offices and will serve as a warehouse for materials of the public service department.
The building itself will cost about $14,000, and the fixtures and fittings will cost about $4,000 additional.

GLENDAL DAILY PRESS AWARDED CITY PRINTING

Contract for Another Year
Awarded by the City Council on Bid

The Glendale Daily Press will continue to be the legal paper of Glendale for another year. The contract for the legal printing of the city was awarded to the Glendale Printing and Publishing company by the city council at its meeting last night. The present contract for the legal printing will expire October 1st, and previous to that time the contract for the ensuing year will be properly executed.

The bids for the city printing were filed with the council last Thursday night, at which time they were publicly opened and read and referred to City Manager Reeves.
The matter was referred to the council last night by Mr. Reeves, who recommended that the bid of the Glendale Printing and Publishing company be accepted. Councilmaster Stevenson then moved that the bid as recommended by the city manager, be accepted and that all other bids be rejected. The motion was seconded and unanimously carried.

AUTOS CRASH ON MANY STREETS

Three automobile accidents accrued in Glendale on Monday.
Automobiles driven by Harold Roach of 404 West Dryden street and Mrs. Lily Burton of 529 West Patterson, came together at the intersection of Central and Patterson at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Roach was thrown to the pavement, as a result of which he suffered a broken nose and a number of bruises.

Another accident occurred when an automobile driven by Robert Laird of 1145 East California street and one operated by Laura Schlo-thauer of 229 North Verdugo road collided, the accident taking place at the corner of Wilson and Adams streets at 4:45 yesterday afternoon.
No one was injured.

Walter M. Singer of 1236 South
Glendale avenue was driving a machine that collided with a car piloted by A. Lombardo of Los Angeles, the accident taking place at 11 o'clock at 517 Verdugo road.
No one was injured and the cars were not slightly damaged.

WONDERFUL SCENE AT THE TUESDAY CLUB-PENDROY FALL FASHION STYLE SHOW

Background Designed by D. L. Ludwig is of Black Velvet With Silver Leaves and Grapes; Gives Vivid Contrast of Figure Lines

COLORING MAKES A DREAM OF HARMONY

Glendale Theater Is Packed to Doors by Admirers of Fine Wearing Apparel, Who Gaze in Wonder at Fine Showing of Fabrics

When the curtain rose this afternoon at the Glendale theatre for the first performance of the beautiful fashion-revue put on by Mrs. Earl Pendroy as a benefit for the building fund of the Tuesday Afternoon club it revealed a wonderful stage setting designed by D. L. Ludwig of the Pendroy company. The back drop was of black velvet, festooned with silver leaves and grapes. Centering this back wall and furnishing a background for a small platform carpeted with oriental rugs upon which the models were first posed was a panel of gold cloth black. Side draperies of gold cloth repeated the scheme with gilt leaves filled with boughs of autumn leaves and flowers decorating the front of the main stage at the side.

The needed note of brilliant color was supplied by the wonderful new masking set, embroidered and fringed with gold which Mr. Howe has just received and which he took this occasion to christen.

But details of the stage setting had to percolate gradually into the consciousness of beholders, for action of the most distracting sort began at once in the delightful song and dance, "Nymphs of Fashion," by pupils of the Pearl Keller school, a dance created for the occasion by Mrs. Pearl Keller Brattain. The dancers were Shirley Hitchcock, Helen Orr, Cecelia Mae
Fischer, Evelyn Hunt, Leona Hunt,
Glen Hitchcock and Dorothy Dutton, all of whom were in dainty taffeta gowns in pastel colors, slightly hooped at the hips, and with them were worn large crown-less maline hats, some trimmed with flowers, others with ostrich tips, and one especially piquant graced with a bouffant bow. Costumes and hats were from the Pen-droy store.

Charming as was the scene, the song, which was written by Mrs.
Pendroy and set to music especially composed for it by Glendale's talented musician, Mrs. L. N. Hagood, was the great hit of the evening. Interpreted by these beautiful dancers, Mrs. Hagood's piano participated in the evening's triumph, Paul Carson presiding at the organ to swell the accompaniment. The applause was instant and prolonged and the dancers were not easily released by the pleased audience.

Then came a display of fall suits, blouses, hats and accessories worn by graceful professional models:
Miss Maybelle Armstrong, Katherine Sumner, May Lyndal, Tayo, Muriel Rae, Grace McQuoid, Juanita Stone, all of Los Angeles, and Miss Glady's Crane of Glendale.
This was followed by a spotlight showing of beautiful hats by Miss Crane of Glendale, which commanded the admiration of every woman present who has any appreciation of pretty millinery. As a frame for her picturesque face they were all charming, though they showed a varied range of shapes and color. One was a large blue velvet semi-sport hat effectively trimmed with bronze nail heads.
A picture hat was of brown velvet and maline, short backed shape, its brim draped with a shadowy fall of Spanish lace. Then there was a high backed orange feather turban with high black winged trim and velvet toque, a Rawak hat, which the Pendroy store is featuring. This was trimmed with a drooping cluster of American Beauty roses.
A soft sport shape of coral velvet embroidered in silver was another charming creation.

Act II opened with "Song Smiles" by Leona and Evelyn Hunt with Miss Gertrude Champlain at the piano. The girls were in sport costumes and their delightful skit suited its setting.

Miss Hazel Linkogel, Glendale's talented young violinist, was the soloist of act III, and as usual played beautifully. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Pearl G.
Curran. Like the other artists, she was in a Pendroy product, a quaint-ly beautiful gown in which a straight skirt of blue velvet was attached to a bodice of pale blue brocade satin. Deep bands of gray fur about 12 inches wide added to the length of the skirt on either side.

Mrs. Harry MacMullin, the soprano, was twice upon the program and each time in a different garb, which showed how entirely possible it is for a woman of noble proportions to be beautiful gowned.
When she sang "The Rose of My Heart" by Lohr she wore an afternoon costume of brown Spanish lace over brown satin, with scarlet floral decoration at the side. Her costume for "Ave Maria" (Schubert) which she sang by request, was an evening gown of white Spanish lace over white crepe with silvery beaded girdle.

Miss Marie Gray, who is a student of Frieda Peycke, gave a musical reading, "The Annual Protest," for which Miss Lily Litch of the Emerson School of Expression furnished the piano accompaniment.

Then the models came into their own again and there was a showing of afternoon gowns and dresses for fall wear.

After some very beautiful numbers by Mrs. Enoch Hopkins, the harriet, there was a revue of evening gowns, wraps, furs, Spanish lace shawls, etc.

Act V was featured by a charming garden dance by Helen Orr, Glen Hitchcock, Cecelia Mae
Fischer, Evelyn and Leona Hunt,
Glen Hitchcock and Dorothy Dutton.

Details of the beautiful revue will be found on another page.

A number of complaints have been made to City Manager Reeves to the effect that in a number of places in Glendale trees are being removed from the parkways. Mr.
Reeves is emphasizing to the residents that a permit must be secured to remove any trees or shrubs from parkways, as they are the property of the city.

In a number of places where the street work is being done, palms and other trees have been removed by the city, this referring particularly to the corner of Park and Glendale avenue and on Los Fells road.

DON'T PARK

On Howard street between Broadway and a point half way between Broadway and Wilson.

DON'T PARK

In such a manner that any portion of your vehicle is within 15 feet of the prolongation of the nearest side of any street intersecting with or terminating at the street on which such vehicle is standing; provided, that in case of a terminating street this section shall apply only to the side adjoining such termination of the street in which any other street terminates.

The district referred to in this section is all of that part of the city of Glendale described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the center line of Maryland avenue with a line 15 feet distant northerly from and parallel to the northerly line of Wilson avenue; thence easterly along said parallel line to a line 15 feet distant easterly from and parallel to the easterly line of Louise street; thence southerly along said last mentioned parallel line to a line parallel to and 15 feet distant northerly of the northerly line of Broadway; thence easterly along said last mentioned parallel line to the center line of Everett street; thence southerly along the center line of Everett street to a line 15 feet distant southerly from and parallel to the southerly line of Broadway; thence westerly along said last mentioned parallel line to a line 15 feet distant easterly from and parallel to the easterly line of Louise street; thence southerly along said last mentioned parallel line to a line 15 feet distant westerly from and parallel to the westerly line of Central avenue; thence northerly along said last mentioned parallel line to a line parallel to and 15 feet distant northerly from the northerly line of Wilson avenue; thence easterly along the last mentioned parallel line to a line 15 feet distant westerly from and parallel to the most westerly line of Brand boulevard; thence northerly along the last mentioned parallel line to a line 15 feet distant northerly from and parallel to the northerly line of Lexington drive; thence easterly along the last mentioned parallel line to a line 15 feet distant easterly from and parallel to the most easterly line of Brand boulevard; thence southerly along the last mentioned parallel line to a line 15 feet distant northerly from and parallel to the northerly line of Wilson avenue; thence easterly along said last mentioned parallel line to the point of beginning.

DON'T PARK

In front of the street entrance of any hotel, theatre, church or other public building, provided, however, that for the purpose of this ordinance no such street entrance shall be taken as wider than 20 feet.

DON'T PARK

Except at an angle of 45 degrees with the curbing with the front of the vehicle towards the curb and shall be headed in the direction of traffic passing on the side of the street on which the same is parked, on the following streets:

On either side of Brand boulevard between the north line of Colorado street and the south line of California avenue; on either side of Broadway between the west line of Brand boulevard and the east line of Central avenue; on the west side of Maryland avenue between the south line of Wilson avenue and the north line of Harvard street; on either side of Harvard street between the east line of Central avenue and the west line of Louise street; on the east side of Louise street between the north line of Colorado street and a line 200 feet north of and parallel to the north line of Colorado street; on the west side of Louise street between the north line of Wilson avenue and a line 200 feet north of and parallel to the north line of Wilson avenue; on the west side of Louise street between the south line of Elk avenue and the north line of Louise avenue; on the east side of Kenwood street between the south line of Wilson avenue and the line parallel to and 200 feet south of the south line of Wilson avenue; on the west side of Jackson street between the south line of California street and the line 200 feet south of and parallel to the south line of California street; on the east side of Cedar street between the north line of Broadway and a line 200 feet north of and parallel to the north line of Broadway; on the west side of Central avenue between the north line of Wilson avenue and a line parallel to and 200 feet north of the north line of Wilson avenue; or on the east side of Central avenue between the north line of Lexington drive and a line 200 feet north of and parallel to the north line of Lexington drive.

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE MEETS

The executive board and the ways and means committee of the Thursday Afternoon club, of which Mrs. W. C. Mabry is president, held a special meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. A. L. Bancroft on Brand boulevard, where plans for the coming season were discussed. The date of the bazaar to be held by the club was set for October 25 at Yeoman hall.

TEACHERS' MEETING SET FOR OCTOBER 6

On the recommendation of the committee of the federation of Parent-Teacher associations the teachers' welcome meeting to be given by the federation has been set for the evening of October 6. It will take place in the girls' gym of Glendale high and plans are being made for a very entertaining program.

SHRINE CLUB TO GIVE DINNER DANCE

Glendale's Shrine club is making a new departure in entertainment in the dinner dance which it is giving Wednesday evening in the Chamber of Commerce banquet hall.

It is an invitation affair which will be enjoyed by members, their wives, sisters and sweethearts, and promises to be a brilliant affair. Music will be furnished by the Kelly Shrine club orchestra.

MUSIC SECTION HOLDS ORGANIZATION MEETING

The music section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, of which Mrs. Warren Roberts is curator, met last night at the home of Mrs. Frank Arnold, 211 East Lomita avenue.

Mrs. Freeman Kelly, chairman of the program committee for the club, was also present and plans were discussed for the first program to be put on some time in November.

The following ladies were present: Mrs. E. W. Kinney, Mrs. Charles Parker, Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, Mrs. Virginia Freeman, Mrs. John Cole, Mrs. Freeman Kelly, Mrs. Warren Roberts and Mrs. Frank Arnold.

NIGHT HIGH OPENS WITH LARGE CLASSES

Enrollment Monday Night Places Students in Five Subjects

Monday evening's night school at Glendale high, of which A. L. Ferguson is principal, opened for the registration of students in classes to be held Monday and Wednesday evenings, and a big enrollment was made, viz.: Spanish, 36; English, 35; mathematics, 28; mechanical drawing, 32; young men's gymnasium work, 30.

Tonight the school will open for classes to be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings, which will include shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, penmanship, auto shop, carpentry and woodwork, machine shop, sewing and millinery, business men's gym class and women's gym class.

These subjects will be given in the same rooms as last year and those who wish to enroll should report direct to the teachers in these rooms, who will take care of all enrollment. The office will be open to give information to all newcomers.

The enrollment indicates a demand for instruction heavier than last year and requests are coming in for other subjects than those covered last year. As soon as a sufficient number have been enrolled for any subject, the requests and an attempt will be made to meet the demand.

RETURN OF THE JACKET HAILED WITH PLEASURE

The return of the jacket is hailed with satisfaction by a large proportion of women to whom they are becoming more comfortable because they afford more freedom than the long coat. This is particularly true in fur garments. Many of the furriers are refusing to make more than a sample or two of the long coats except upon order, predicting that 44 to 46 inches will be the popular length. The popularity of cape models continues, particularly in mink. Brown is to be a very popular shade, particularly in furs.

The newest combination announced from London is black and brown, the brown sport hats carrying black feather pompons or black quills as trimming.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

MRS. ELLA S. MITCHELL.
Mrs. Ella S. Mitchell passed away this morning at her home, 1432 Glenwood Road. She was 23 years of age and was born in Copenhagen, Denmark, and had been in California for two years and in Glendale for several months.

Mrs. Mitchell had been living at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Berg, 1432 Glenwood Road. Funeral services will be held later. Pulliam-Kiefer & Eyerick in charge.

MRS. NANCY MILDRED ELLISON.
Mrs. Nancy Mildred Ellison passed away Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ivy Robertson, 323 West Cerritos avenue. Mrs. Ellison was 81 years of age.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Ivy Robertson, a granddaughter, Mrs. Helen Jones and two grand-children.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home, 323 West Cerritos avenue with interment at Forest Lawn Memorial Park. L. G. Scovern Company in charge.

MRS. LURIE S. WHITNEY.
Mrs. Lurie S. Whitney passed away Monday afternoon at her home, 503 West Burchett street at the age of 74.

She is a native of Sterling, Mass., but had lived at the place of death for two years and in California 3 years.

Mrs. Whitney is survived by her husband, Mr. Henry S. Whitney, two sons, John S. of Glendale and Henry P. Whitney of Los Angeles and one daughter, Mrs. Mary Smith of Los Angeles. L. G. Scovern Company in charge.

PURELY PERSONAL

Mrs. J. W. Sedden of 712 East Garfield, arrived home from the Maternity hospital in Los Angeles, Friday, bringing with her the little Sedden Jr., whose name is Donald Mc.

Mrs. Ralph W. Brown of 205 North Brand boulevard, wife of the well-known photographer, is leaving Sunday for Elmhurst, N. Y., to visit her old home. She expects to be gone about six weeks, stopping on the return trip at Chicago, Omaha and San Francisco.

Mrs. S. S. Beran is the newly appointed courtesy chairman of the Broadway school for the next year. She is very enthusiastic and a social benefit to the school and the Parent-Teachers' association.

House guests over the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carroll, 320 West Burchett street, were Mrs. Mary E. Carroll, Mrs. Laura Carroll and Mrs. Walter Magee, of Exeter, Calif. Mrs. Magee remained here to spend a week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Siple, of Mile-high ranch, Beaumont, drove to Glendale Monday evening with a load of delicious pears from their ranch. They are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Staples of West Doran street.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Beran have just returned from a trip to Fresno in their Chandler coupe where they enjoyed a family reunion. There were five generations present at this family reunion. "We had a very enjoyable trip," Mr. Beran states. He was surely glad to get back to Glendale, the one big family, and in all the trip there was no place growing like this town.

George Russ, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Russ, of 122 West Burchett street, has been seriously ill, but is now on the road to recovery. George is a senior at Glendale high.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carroll and house guest, Mrs. Walter Magee, from Exeter, will attend a theatre party in Los Angeles tonight.

Dinner guests Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude G. Putnam, 424 North Glendale avenue, were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carroll and son Charles of Glendale, Mrs. Mary S. Carroll, Mrs. Walter Magee and Mrs. Laura Carroll of Exeter, Calif.

Miss Esther Kirby from Fresno was an over Sunday guest of Mrs. L. N. East, 213 South Jackson street.

It was voted by the congregation of the Congregational church on Sunday to have a large Hinners pipe organ installed in their new church building. This organ is located at Pekin, Ill., and it is hoped to have it installed by the time of dedication, which has been set for some time in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dawson and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kerns motored to Canyons, 20 miles above Saugus, where they spent two days with Mr. Dawson's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. George Schafer. They enjoyed deer hunting but had no luck, nevertheless having a good time.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Glendale Daily Press: Almost daily the fact is being brought to our attention that Glendale is a much-ruled city, and one deliberate policy would appear to be to suppress the children and prohibit all innocent enjoyment, if it can by any possible or impossible construction be regarded as a nuisance.

The other morning two little fellows came up town with their coaters to deposit their savings in the bank. It was a mile from their home, and their achievement stated them—to be able to come all that distance in their "automobiles" and make their deposits—something they had never done before, by themselves. They were keeping out of people's way—they have been taught the "rules of the road"—and making less noise than some automobiles on the boulevard, certainly less than a speed-co demon, who went down the street as though the hosts of hell were screaming at his heels. The little boys were disturbing no one, interfering with no one, but only his star displayed, chance to be passing at the time, and after the manner of "hair street" towns, he summoned the older of the two boys to his august presence, and informed him that if he ever caught him again with "that thing," he would take him up to the city hall—he would be arrested—like a common felon. It was an awful moment; the little fellow's heart dropped to his feet, and his day was over. He was not to be allowed to run his coaster; if he did he would be arrested.

This was his second experience with the police. A short time before he came up town with his mother, and while she was in the bank he walked to the corner of the boulevard and Broadway and sat down on the steps at the depot. Presently came a policeman and told him to get "offa there." But on an evening, a few days later, I saw these same steps completely occupied by men—loafers—but no policeman ordered them "offa there," though the man on the job stood only a few yards away—talking and laughing with a friend. I have seen these steps occupied at all hours—but only the little boy is ordered off. What is the answer?

If it is against an ordinance, or is a police rule that coaters are not allowed on the public street because of the "noise" they make, hadn't we better begin with the most informal and disturbing noise in the city caused by the motorcycles of the speed-cops? They are to be heard at all hours of the day, flying along at 45, 50 and probably more miles an hour, a law to them, and utterly regardless of the lives or rights of others. And who are they? Do we ever hear of them accomplishing anything—except halting automobile drivers before the "judge," some of whom violated no speed law? I am not speaking for myself—I have no automobile—but of what I know. Do these fellows on wheels think that by making all the noise they can and recklessly driving through the streets that they impress the natives? They do, so much so, that so far as I am concerned, they are damned as an intolerable nuisance that ought to be suppressed.

Accumulating rules for the cramping of liberty, together with the constant adding to the high cost of living, will appear to be the order of the day at the city hall. When the police of Glendale begin to learn that crimes are committed here; that crime is on the increase, and that it is their duty to suppress it; that there are daily numerous violations of the automobile regulations concerning noise, all over town, and all the time, and that it is their duty to put a stop to it, as also to the speed fiends, who usually escape, there will be less time for molesting children in their harmless enjoyment and threatening them with arrest.

Mr. Editor: Certainly tonight's Press caps the climax in its appeal for the electric line funds.

Lately I have been wondering if I was a non-resident reading these appeals for the past two weeks what I would think. Would I think of a city of 25,000 or would I think of an isolated village? It seems to me this makes a sad reflection on our boasted prosperity.

Personally I am ashamed to have such appeals go broadcast and have done "my bit" to prevent it. I have told us we could acquire a 60-acre park over night without a symptom of a strain, yet when it comes to a commodity that affects every resident of Glendale, why so little interest manifested? If you can "rise in meekness" and explain, it would be "mighty interesting" reading.

G. S. HOWELL

Mrs. Jack C. Eccles, of Pineola, Mont., is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pearson, 644 E. Harvard. She is accompanied by her little daughter, 8 years old, who will enter school here. There are many others not only in Montana, but other northern states, who will find their way to the sunny southland before the snow flies and coal is to be burned.

Do You Wish to Learn Bridge?

Twelve lessons by one of the greatest experts will appear in the Glendale Daily Press

Watch the Women's Page on Friday, Beginning Sept. 29

So many readers of the Glendale Daily Press have asked for a department devoted to bridge, that with the beginning of fall activities, the Press has decided to institute such a department for the benefit of those who would like to enter more fully into the social activities of the city and are debarred because of lack of proper instruction.

The course of easy lessons arranged for the Glendale Daily Press by one of the best experts in the country will appear hereafter on the Women's Page every Friday.

There are twelve lessons in all, covering the laws of auction, score keeping, choice of suit in bidding, card probabilities, card valuation, the original bid, bids for first and second hand, bids for third and fourth hand, no trump bids for various hands, defensive bids over suit bids and no trump bids. Supporting bids are taken up in the last article.

Be sure to get the Glendale Daily Press every Friday. Hoyle Jr. is one of the best authorities on the game and the lessons cannot be had from any other source.

FARM ADVISER AIDS GROWERS

Hardy W. Campbell, Farm Adviser for the Southern Pacific Company, and grain showing the efficacy of the principles of tillage he advocates. Above, at right, the four heads in the center were grown according to Campbell's plan; the other two by the ordinary method.

Principles of Tillage to Increase Yields Explained by S. P. Farm Adviser.

The same principles of tillage, in preparation of land for crops and subsequent cultivation, which have proven so successful in raising grain crops on Western semi-arid lands without irrigation, are proving successful for crops raised under irrigation and for orchards and vineyards, according to Hardy W. Campbell, Farm Adviser for the Southern Pacific Company. Campbell has inspected this season a number of new orchards and vineyards in California, Oregon, Nevada, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Campbell is the man who evolved what is now called the "Campbell System of Dry Farming." Campbell, however, objects to the word "dry" and insists that the principles used in his present plan apply to all kinds of farming, with or without irrigation, as well as under a much lower rainfall than even now is commonly conceded necessary for successful crops. Campbell emphasizes the importance of the proper preparation of the seed-bed and sufficient intelligent cultivation afterwards.

Campbell arranged to address the Nebraska Bankers Association at Omaha, September 22 on the subject of "Soil Fertility by Utility of Soil Water," and to discuss the same subject before the Minnesota Bankers' Association at Minneapolis. On his return from these conventions he will stop at Yuma, Arizona, to investigate conditions there.

Interesting evidence of the direct effect of properly prepared lands was recently received by Campbell from a Metropolis, Nevada, grain field prepared under his direction. In the form of three stools of wheat, One stool had 81 stalks, one 103 and one 120, each the result of one grain of wheat drilled in well prepared soil that was liberally supplied with fertility through well planned and timely work. This crop was raised without irrigation, but was prepared for by summer tillage in 1921 and grown this year.

More evidence of what cultivation of a growing crop means was sent to Campbell by A. B. Shield of Delano, Kern County, California, in four heads of wheat from a stool grown on Shield's ranch. This stool had ample space and was cultivated while growing, no fertilizers or irrigation being used. The heads contained forty-four, thirty-eight, thirty-two and thirty stalks, averaging 75 grains each or slightly over 3400 grains from one stool. Such results, says Campbell, simply mean that under certain physical conditions brought about by the right kind of tillage at the proper time, very much more grain, fruit or vegetables may be grown per acre than is commonly obtained. The usual query is "Does it pay?" to which Campbell replies very emphatically in the affirmative.

Campbell recently inspected a number of new orchards and vineyards in the southern and central portions of California to study methods and principles commonly practiced in preparing the land and the after care in irrigation and cultivation. One of these inspections was of a 4000-acre peach orchard of one, two and three-year-old trees belonging to the California Packing Corporation and located east of Merced, Calif. What must be considered. Nothing can prove this more convincingly than the soil sager.

"It is very desirable, so far as possible, to not only carry the high percentage of moisture at the top of the firm soil, immediately below the mulch, but also to induce free access of air throughout the entire growing season. The ideal condition to furnish this air is to cover the firm soil with a granular mulch, neither too fine nor too coarse. To obtain this ideal mulch, the cultivation must be done when the soil is moist—not wet or dry. The loosened soil soon dries, leaving the firm soil moist to the top. This is usually easy to obtain in sandy soils, but to do this properly in heavy soils it is sometimes necessary to go over the field a second time, after first going over just enough to loosen the top when the surface is simply dry enough not to stick. This prevents the crusting or drying out. Then the second operation should come one to four days later, after the free water has gone down, leaving the soil moist, when it more readily separates, and makes a finer and much more effective mulch. This procedure means much to the tree, as a higher percentage of moisture is held in the root zone and the presence of cloddy mulch is prevented."

"The high value of this plan of preparation and one season's cultivation before the setting of the trees or vines, is borne out by the interesting results obtained from careful summer tilling for wheat, oats and barley, and the precision of time in doing this work is just as vital. There are numerous records of large yields of wheat as high as 40 to 60 bushels per acre, grown on correctly summer tilled land, where nearby fields, prepared and sowed under the more common plan of any old way, yielded very poorly or nothing at all."

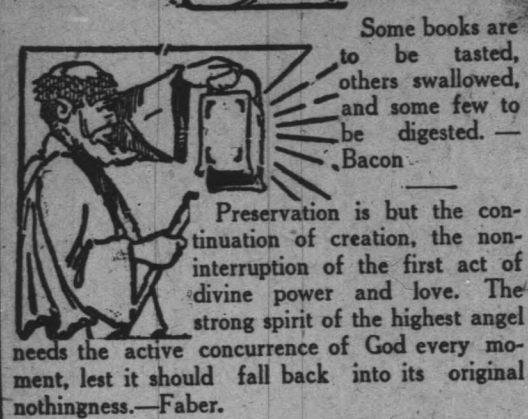

The Southern Pacific Land Department "Bulletin No. 10" deals quite explicitly with questions of increased fertility by tillage. Bulletin No. 12 also explains in detail the summer tilling question as applied to the coast country. One very noteworthy feature of the cost by letter or personal application to Hardy W. Campbell, Southern Pacific Building, San Francisco. A Bulletin is now under way dealing with tillage and irrigation of orchards and vineyards.

Campbell's greatest pleasure is to visit a farm or ranch where the proprietor or manager feels he is not getting satisfactory returns and work out, as far as possible, a practical remedy. The Southern Pacific follows the theory that its interests are tied up with the territory it serves, and Campbell and the Company wish to be helpful in increasing agricultural productivity.

Truths in Epigram

Some books are to be tasted, others swallowed, and some few to be digested. — Bacon

Preservation is but the continuation of creation, the non-interruption of the first act of divine power and love. The strong spirit of the highest angel needs the active concurrence of God every moment, lest it should fall back into its original nothingness. — Faber

HOMICIDAL BOOTLEGGERS

Much has been said in relation to bootleggers in this page. None of it has been designed to soothe their savage breasts. In fact, the more that is learned of this peculiar criminal class, the more reprehensible seem all their operations.

That the liquor they hawk to the unwary is deadly stuff, is known widely. That often it blinds permanently the victims it does not kill, is an admitted fact. As the bootleggers are willing to slay patrons for gain, so are they willing to kill the officers who interfere with the traffic. The list of murders committed as they have tried to evade capture has become extensive. It grows daily. In addition to the number shot fatally in line of duty are many more wounded. The bootleggers have learned that when arrested they are likely to be sent to prison for long terms. They do not feel that they can afford to retire from a highly profitable calling that is likely soon to dwindle. They have sense enough to know that the end is in sight. Now is the time of their activity, for indignation against them is growing. Their vast corruption funds may win a petty official occasionally, but they can't corrupt the people with their bribes. The illegal structure they have builded is sure to come down with a crash. They want to stay until the fall is near, so as to wring the last cent of profit from their dupes.

Thus it is they are ready to fight authority by every possible means. Probably they would prefer bribing to murder, but they never have seemed to balk at murder.

THROW TO THE LIONS

Senator Shortridge had the temerity to call up the anti-lynching bill recently. Immediately his associates proceeded to lynch him. They snatched the floor, so to speak, from under his feet. "Is this an arena or the United States senate?" asked the Californian. He received no definite answer, although a suitable one might have been found in the word "Both."

The senate is noted for belief in its courtesy. It has a theory of courtesy, prescribed by its code of ethics. This is a code highly praised but not uniformly practiced. When a senator is presenting a popular measure he is certain of a respectful hearing from such other members as happen to be present. If the measure is not popular, then he has to be on guard. He is likely to undergo the experience often described as being "bawled out." He finds that he is not only in the arena but that he has been thrown to the lions. Often there will be a demand that the speaker who thereby wins the chance to utter himself, launches into a dissertation that has nothing to do with the matter at issue. If the original senator fails to be discouraged by such form of interruption, he is called to order, a process extremely annoying to one who knows he has not been out of order.

Senator Shortridge at least gained one point. He got on record as opposed to mob rule, but just as he did so, mob rule silenced him.

THE AGE OF INVENTION

Many years ago a conscientious subordinate resigned from his position in the patent office. He gave as the reason his belief that all that it was desirable or possible to invent, had been invented. He could not see that anything more needed to be done, and his conscience would not permit him to hold a sinecure.

All this was long before many of the most important mechanical devices now in common use had been thought of, unless by individuals who were looked upon as dreamers, and laughed at for their dreaming. It was even prior to the appearance of the bicycle. There was no human knowledge concerning the wonders that could be worked by electricity. This form of energy had not been applied to heat, light or power. The automobile was decades in the future. The flying ship was a chimera. Of course there had been no inkling of telephony, much less of wireless communication. Nobody had set type save by hand. No genius had thought of artificial ice. A bare list of the commonplace in use today, that in the time of the conscientious patent examiner, had not been remotely conceived, would take up much space.

Still, as all thoughtful people are aware, there is much yet to be accomplished. Upon some of the problems genius already is at work. Doubtless when these have been solved, other problems will arise. The distribution of coal by present methods is recognized as enormously wasteful. Scientists now believe that ultimately the fuel will be burned at the mouth of the mine, every element of value extracted there, and the productive energy be transmitted by wire to the point where there is demand for it. Abolition of fuel in cities would work a transformation. It would change the aspect of the streets and of the very skies above them. Hydro-electric power, in which this coast is potentially rich, will help to introduce the new conditions.

There will be a clean material world, and that must be a beautiful and a healthful world.

THE MENACE OF TURKEY

Oscar S. Straus, twice minister to Turkey, takes a dark view of the prospects of Europe. He is fearful that another great war impends. His analysis of the situation is very interesting. The concluding paragraph of his comment has a deep significance. He says:

"For the last 100 years the eastern question has menaced the peace of Europe, not because of the dominant power of Turkey, but because of the jealously and the antagonistic interests of European powers in respect to Turkey."

In other words, the conduct of the powers is responsible for the conditions that have arisen. They have sought to serve their own real or fancied needs, without a thought of the ultimate result. Now as they face the outlook they see war looming close.

Mr. Straus seems to ascribe much weight to the attitude of Russia. He discerns a Russian army that may be indefinitely increased, and under German officers, become a tremendous equation, possibly fatal to the nations opposing it. Perhaps he is over-pessimistic in this particular. At least such hope will be entertained unless shattered by absolute facts.

It is easy to see mistakes after the effects of them have been felt. The armistice was a mistake in that it permitted Turkey, as a defeated power, to be as strong as ever, as fully equipped, and as unsubdued. When the invaders were driven back, they were not conquered in spirit. This was known to be true of the Germans. It is now known to be true of the Turks. The allies had a chance to complete the work of subjection, and they abandoned it unfinished.

The opportunity was at hand to form an effective League of Nations. It was rejected by the United States. This country would have been the chief moral force of such a combination. It refused the responsibility. It is not now in a position to do more than look on with regret. Deliberately it thrust the affairs of Europe from it. It assumed the role of spectator, but it finds the spectacle far from edifying.

Progress in Narrowness

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Coleridge once said: "He who begins by loving Christianity better than Truth will proceed by loving his own Sect or Church better than Christianity, and end in loving himself better than all."

This is a good epitome of what might be called the intellectual rake's progress.

It marks out what happens to a mind that is smitten with spiritual adultery.

For the true wife of the mind is the truth. The mind should be loyal to her, in sickness and in health, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, till death do them part.

The temptations to wander from the side of the truth abound. One painted woman who constantly seeks to lure away the truth's husband is called Expediency.

When a man has yielded to the impulse to believe a thing because he thinks it is safe, or because it makes for his profit or even because he considers that it is the best thing for his fellow man, he has made the first step in intellectual dishonesty. Curiously enough this act of believing a thing, not from honest conviction, but because some one tells us to believe it, or because we imagine that it is best to believe it, has been called Faith. Men have died for it, and what is worse, they have killed other people for it, and thought they were very grand and noble.

As a matter of fact this is not faith at all, but the most deadly form of unfaith.

It is not the blatant infidel that is most dangerous, it is the fanatical persecutor. The man who resorts to force, force of any kind, whether physical or spiritual, to silence his opponent, is simply a man who is not certain that he himself has the truth.

If he were certain of the truth he would have no fear of opposition. When one has a desire only to know what is true and a willingness to trust in that, he does not strive nor cry.

If he believes in a deity at all, he must believe in an Almighty one. So why should he worry or draw his sword?

This is the gist of the doctrine of non-resistance. When you do not resist it shows that you have no fear of your enemy and an utter confidence in your position. Faith excludes resistance, even as perfect love casteth out fear.

Unfortunately we have identified a good deal of our love of the truth with contention and party spirit. Men have always talked about "the defenders of the faith." They have always been much more willing to fight for their notion of the truth than to rectify that notion when they found it was deficient.

But faith needs no defenders, the truth needs no champions. If we simply will believe it and trust it, it will take care of us.

It is this utter confidence in the absolute almighty, irresistible, toughness, and power of the truth that is the only intelligent kind of faith.

Once we start competition and conflict, once we begin by assuming that our own particular group or party is absolutely right; in short, once we close the mind's door and cease to learn and to grow, we have started on the toboggan slide which Coleridge indicated.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

(Find the error in this article)

Capitalization and "In So Far As"

Miss I. Z. Mark, Chicago, Ill.: "Please advise me as to whether 'father,' 'brother,' and similar terms of relationship are capitalized; also whether names of seasons are capitalized; as, Spring, Fall. Also, I should like to know whether 'insofar as' should be written as I have it, or in separate words. I always write 'inasmuch as' in this manner, and have consequently assumed that 'insofar as' is correct, but I have never seen any authority for it and have noticed frequently that the small words in its composition are written apart. There is great room for improvement in each one of us and those of us who realize this are very much interested in your column. I hope it may be of some long time. Answer: 'Do not capitalize 'father,' 'brother,' 'sister,' 'uncle,' and other symbols of relationship except in such cases as 'Father Knickerbocker,' 'Sister Jane.' 'Uncle Henry,' and 'The Father,' the last one symbolizing a particular priest or The Diet. Note the following: Ask Brother James, my oldest brother, to see Father Flynn today. Correct: Inasmuch as; in so far as; fall; winter; spring; summer.

"Looked Like Him (Or He)?" Katherine Wilson, Spokane, Wash.: "Please tell me which one should say: 'The man who passed looked like him,' or, 'The man who passed looked like he.' This sentence was in a Sunday paper. Is it correct? If there was some means of assaying conversation as there is of extracting ore from rock it would be amazing to find how little gold per ton is mined. Answer: Correct: The man that passed looked like him. His is the object of the preposition like. That is preferable to who in a restrictive clause (a clause that is intended to identify its antecedent). The right word is were (not was). Were (subjunctive mode) denotes a supposition, a condition contrary to fact; as, if you were tired you would rest. When a past event is a fact and not a supposition you say: It gold was valuable Croesus was rich indeed, for he had much of it.

THE LISTENING POST

Gold is a necessary metal in our civilization. We use it as a basis for our currency. And since we maintain our currency on the basis of gold we do not have to use hay-balers to carry home the price of a loaf of bread. Money is chiefly valuable when it is reasonably hard to get.

If we could make value by means of paper and printing presses, why should anybody work?

For all the money needed is to be had for the printing.

And it is not the disposition of the human being to work if work is unnecessary.

That may or may not be a pleasant commentary upon humanity.

But it is a true one.

You, for instance: Whether you are a bricklayer, a merchant, a clerk, a professional man, a day-laborer or whatever you may be:

How long would you work for the merely altruistic joy of labor?

Not that you work for mere money alone.

But the reward of your labor is an incentive to the doing of it.

So it is well for the nation that has a stable basis for its currency.

And gold is pretty stable.

Because nature has made it in small quantities and hidden it away where it takes courage and energy and labor to dig it out.

One of the epics of mankind has been the quest for gold.

It has always been so.

And perhaps always will be so.

There is no danger of the discovery of a mountain range of solid gold.

And gold was not so deposited that we might make it a basis of value.

But it is a basis of value and money because it is so deposited.

It is necessary not to get the cart before the horse.

As we sometimes do in argument.

It has been the quest of the world for thousands of years.

The philosopher's stone that was to turn all metals into gold was long sought.

And the seekers did not seem to know that its discovery would destroy the value of gold.

Because you could make mountains of it out of iron ore.

The explorers and conquerors such as Cortez and Pizarro had in gold the spur to their travels into strange countries.

And so it has been through all time.

Men going down into the mountains of the earth for it.

Blasting and hauling and carrying a mile beneath the mountain side.

And it is not quite just to say that the death of forty-seven men a mile beneath the earth recently was due to man's "lust for gold."

It would be just as unfair to say that death by sunstroke in the field of wheat was due to man's "lust for bread."

It was a tragic but unavoidable incident of labor done under unusual circumstances and with unusual hazards.

The thing that appeals to us is that labor in unusual circumstances should be made as safe as is possible.

That all contingencies of danger be guarded against as far as possible.

That nothing be left undone that shall protect the lives and health of men.

Beyond that we cannot go.

For men will always seek gold where it is to be found.

And other men will go down into the earth to dig for it.

As a part of their day's work.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

Good Roads Save Half of Truck Power

"The highway is an investment, and the measure of its accomplishment is not the building of mileage but the resulting reduction in the costs of transportation," says Dr. W. K. Hatt, director of the advisory board of highway board of the National Research Council which is co-operating with the United States Bureau of Public Roads and the Quartermaster Corps and the Army in an investigation which it is expected may lead to great economies in road construction, motor operation, and car design.

"We have in the past confined our attention too closely to the materials of construction. Now, we are able to the need of fitting the road to the traffic. The large expense of highway transportation is in the expense of operation rather than in fixed charges and maintenance of road. Twelve dollars are spent on the vehicle where $1 is spent on the road. There is room for research on the vehicle if we are to cut down the transport bill," he emphasized.

"Our investigation has already shown us," he continues, "that there is more than twice as much power required of the engine when a truck is traveling over one of the lower types of road surfacing than when moving over one of the higher types."

"It is also probable that great economies might be effected in the design of motor cars were road grades reduced."

"In less than a year, our present investigation will be completed to cover tests with various types of motor vehicles with the load, tire, and spring equipment moving at different speeds over varying kinds of road surfaces. The amount of gasoline used, the resistance of the road, wind resistance, and internal engine resistance will be covered in the data being collected. This information will enable the highway engineer to determine what kind of surface to use for a given volume of traffic to result in the least total cost for road and vehicle operation."

The board of which Dr. Hatt is director is co-ordinating highway research work throughout the country and putting workers in touch with one another so as to save delay and cost of investigation when completed investigations are available from another organization.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

BASEBALL AS A CIVILIZER

[Baltimore American]

Under date of August 26 the department of commerce supplies the world with some unusual information. It is that baseball is supplanting bull fighting as a sport in the hearts of the Mexicans. Cited in point is Chihuahua, where a recent Sunday game of baseball drew 5000 spectators, more than were registered in the palmy days of the local bull ring. The bull ring languishes and it has been necessary to enlarge the baseball grounds.

Furthermore, baseball is drawing trade; it is spreading Americanism and making better markets for American goods. Thus the American consul on the ground reports: "No better means can be found to tear down the barriers of national prejudices and advance American prestige and commerce in Mexico than by the encouragement of baseball, a sport the Americanism of which is undisputed." There is no doubt that this is being done. The state government of Chihuahua is lending its active support to the advancement of the game and at the recent opening of a new park the governor threw out the first ball and an eighty-piece military band supplied the music. "It means more business," says the American consul, "not only in balls and bats and peanuts and popcorn." It means, too, the steadily diminishing fortunes of the bull ring.

There has not been much news of Mexico recently, and the impression seemed to be that stagnation had set in, but manifestly things are better than we thought. With baseball on the boom and bull fighting on the slump, Mexico is headed for a happier day.

Seductive advertisements offering positions in the movies hardly could delude anybody with gumption enough to put on make-up.

Another child wonder has been discovered. However, the parents do not need to be discouraged. Sometimes the infant prodigy reaches a mature normal.

Deer hunters seem to be unusually lucky this year. More than the usual proportion have escaped being shot at.

Just what will become of this machinery of publicity and means of molding public opinion, now that Northcliffe has died, is the great question of moment, as far as his death affects British affairs of state. Will Lloyd George take over this agency or secure control of the same? Or what hand other than his will be lifted to direct the thinking of the British masses?

THE FARMER'S JOB

[Farm "Life"]

Recent statistics sent out by the census authorities show that the farm population of the United States is only 31,614,269, a little less than 30 per cent of the total. This includes farm operators, and farm laborers and their families, who live in the country and shows an average of about five persons to each farm. About half the people in the nation are classified as rural—that is, they live in the country or in towns having fewer than 25,000 inhabitants, but only 61 per cent of the "rurals" are actually engaged in farming. Thus 39 per cent of the rural population and the entire city population must be fed by the farmer engaged in agriculture. It gives the farmer a big job. Only a few years ago each farmer had to provision his own family and one other family—now he must furnish food for nearly three other families besides his own. His occupation should not fail.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The little town of Santa Rosa up north is much interested in a gambling raid. Among the fifty prisoners were a large number of zens prominent in business, social and professional life. When the po-came in unbidden there was $3000 on the tables.

The spirit of gambling is a peculiar thing. Taken in one sense, everything is a gamble. That is to say, every human activity, whatever its purpose, must possess the element of uncertainty. A man invests his money in whatever may be the opportunity, and he is taking a chance. He bets with an insurance company as to his own longevity. He buys land in the belief that the city is growing in that direction. If it does, he wins; if it grows in the other direction, he loses.

One of the worst features of what are known as games of chance, is the absence of the chance. The games are crooked, the cards marked, the mechanism controlled by electricity secretly applied. Thus the professional gambler really is a professional thief. He could as honorably be engaged in picking pockets.

Laws against gambling, although the beneficiary of the laws does not know it, are largely for protection of the uncounted tribes of suckerdom. These poor rubes prowl around until they find a concealed gambling joint instituted for the purpose of fleecing them. Joyously they enter. Later if the police also enter, the rubes fail to recognize in this act of kindness. They pay their fines regretfully, although they would not have finished in adding their rolls to the bank of the gamblers.

Situations in the Near East change with such rapidity that it is impossible to know much about them. The fact seems clear that the Turks intend to put up the best fight of which they are capable. Also that England is preparing for a real war, and that diplomacy is in the discard.

Massachusetts has a law designed to discourage desertion by husbands and fathers. When a male lights out leaving his responsibilities to charity, the law reaches for him, and has a long reach.

Just at present there is being made an effort to extradite from California a man indicted in Boston for such desertion. It is to be hoped that the opportunity of taking the return trip shall be thrust upon him.

Wife desertion is one of the meanest of crimes, yet in most communities it seems to be regarded as an incident. There can be no excuse for it; if there are reasons for divorce, the procuring of legal separation is comparatively easy. If no such reason exists, let the recreant husband take his medicine.

Utah courts have sent a pretty young woman to prison for life for murder. The only defense she had to put forward seems to have been her pleasing face. Apparently defendants in murder cases all look alike to a Utah jury.

Scientific men made successful observations of the recent eclipse of the sun. Part of the task they had in hand in relation to this event was the testing of the Einstein theory. Their reports will be awaited with interest, none the less that comparatively few people know what the theory is, and few that know, understand it. In the majority of minds it has awakened no stronger an emotion than curiosity.

Some have interpreted one phase of the theory as proclaiming that parallel lines may cross, and that the straight line is not necessarily the shortest distance between two points. This sounds like arrant nonsense; not that anybody has sufficient nerve to say that it is nonsense. Einstein is a hypnotist anyhow.

It is said that the kin of the ex-kaiser are not particularly happy over his coming marriage. It would be strange were the plan pleasing to them. Wilhelm has considerable money, and some day there will be occasion for making a division of it.

Los Angeles is to try the plan of having street car passengers call out the names of the streets at which they wish to stop. Perhaps it will work. Nevertheless disadvantages may be discerned.

When, during the rush hour a car is so full that none of the strap hangers is able to take a deep breath, a shout from the center of the pack would be likely to merge into the general clamor, and be lost. If several desire to get off at the same corner they might pool their issues, choose a leader, and shout in unison.

The new tariff bill is in force. The statement is made because everything appears to be moving about as usual, and some might fail to see any difference. But in various ways, and quite soon enough, perhaps, the consciousness that there is a new tariff will dawn.

Two who had been sweethearts 61 years ago, met in this state recently and now are married and living happy ever afterward.

The bridegroom is only 75 and the bride five years younger. In a region where centenarians flourish these years do not represent old age at all.

Disappointed at failure in writing an aspirant for literary fame killed herself at Long Beach recently.

The obsession of ability to write is common. Men and women who perhaps are not close thinkers, who lack in powers of observation, and are without skill to express themselves, conceive the notion that they have a message for the world. Their happiness is blighted when the world refuses to listen.

When the individual tries to do something, and finds the task impossible, it is well to turn to other activities, rather than give way to despair. Because one cannot write is no sign that another field of usefulness is not available.

"Ninety days in jail," said the court. In fact he said it twice, and two speeders retired from the highway.

There is some hope when courts begin to talk in this fashion.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

We've lost our hired girl. And although she was easily the best hired girl we ever had, not to speak of being a hired girl that one could look at practically for hours without noticing that a sensation of fatigue was setting in, I'm glad of it. — Mrs. Pilgrim found her.

"I must have a girl at once," she told the lady boss at the Employment Agency. Knowing Mrs. P., I suspect that she accompanied this statement with a few cantos of her domestic song recital entitled "Trouble in the Kitchen." My only criticism of Mrs. P. is that when she tells a story she begins with the Fall of Man.

"I have only one," said the lady boss, "and she's some sort of a foreigner."

A tall, ladylike girl agreed to do what she could for the Pilgrim ménage. She said that she had never cooked or washed dishes, but that she was honest and clean and would try. She has been a wonder, an impossibility come true. Show her how to cook a dish once and she does it better than Mrs. P. herself on the next trial.

"She is the daughter of a Russian prince and general," said Mrs. Pilgrim one day, her blue eyes round as bowls. "Her story is a terribly tragic one."

But the story was told only after Mrs. Pilgrim had wheedled and it was no worse than the stories of thousands of other Russian refugees. She differed from most of them in her willingness to make the best of the present.

"At first," she said, "I screamed and went into rages. But I found that did me no good. American people do not like cry-babies." She hopes that one day she will regain her estates in Russia. Even so, she thinks she will be poor all her life, for she will only regain the land.

"But Russia's agony is good for the world," she says philosophically. "Some foolish theories will have been exploded, but the important thing is that we of the aristocracy—cruel, idle, extravagant, who felt only contempt for the poorer people—will have learned our lesson. Without us Russia would never have gone mad."

'MIND BUILDING' IS 'MASQUERADER' POPULAR GLENDALE RECREATION

It Precedes Actual Construction and Gives Exact Knowledge

"Mind building," the construction which precedes the contract for a home, is one of the most judicial methods of money saving.

"Mind building" is that survey of materials, of the various parts of a house that go to make up the structure. Until a house is completed by a finished mental structure, it should never be attempted.

To the prospective home-builder, who realizes the value of mind building, the Glendale building material exhibit should prove of unusual interest. This exhibit is being put on by various Glendale concerns, with one from Pasadena, and is located at 111 Central Bldg., on East Broadway, upstairs.

In equipping the kitchen, one would be interested in the disappearing breakfast nook. It is comprised of cupboard in the lower part, with a door that drops down and makes a table. Above this is space for provisions and on one side is a large cooler and on the other an ironing board. This, with two seats on either side comes built as one feature and is most convenient. Back of the ironing board is a broom closet big enough for a vacuum sweeper.

Another of their built-in features is a bathroom closet, consisting of a medicine closet with seat below. Still another is a telephone booth with a space above for the telephone book, a small shelf for the instrument and a folding seat.

A wall ironing board will also form a small breakfast table, or one may drop down a sleeve board. These are furnished by the Peerless Built-in Furniture company.

Of course, one of the beautifying features for the interior of a new home is the finish you choose. It is sometimes hard to know just how your woodwork is going to look. But in the display put on by Pratt-Lambert, paints and varnishes, you can see for yourself just what a certain finish will look like on a certain kind of wood.

If one must economize a bit on room, the Marshall Stearns patented wall bed would be an agreeable feature. It requires only a space 22 inches in depth and a space 5 feet 2 inches across. This bed completely closes when it is down or folded up, which is one especially noteworthy feature.

The roofing on this new home is an important part of it, and the Pioneer Paper company puts out a slate surfaced shingle that is guaranteed for 20 years, with no maintenance at all after application. It comes in the two most desired colors, red and green.

The Glendale Hardware company's exhibit sets before you everything in the hardware line that you will need to make your home up "to snuff."

The William Radiator company furnished a radiator that gives steam heat without a boiler. It is made by gas. It is known as the Clow radiator and one of these days, when the rains start in, heat of this sort would be heartily welcomed.

Of course the exterior of your home must be made attractive, too. The Howard Woodworking Shop can help you do this. They make trellises, pergolas, flower boxes and make a specialty of porch ends.

The Universal Silicate Stucco company will help you solve the problem of your exterior finish. This stucco comes mixed ready for plastering, with nothing to be added but water. It is already colored and is most convenient and lasting.

The Concrete Brick and Tile company make a tile that is used especially for warehouses or fireproof buildings. If you desire to make

'MASQUERADER' AT T. D. & L.

"The Masquerader," with Guy Bates Post, one of the big pictures of the year, comes to the T. D. and L. theatre today. For six years the world has waited to see this picture, just as Richard Walton Tully presented it on the stage, and just as Guy Bates Post created the duel roles of John Chicote, M. P. and John Loder. Now those things have happened at once. "The Masquerader" has come to the scene with resplendent force. It is an understanding among motion pictures as it was among stage dramas.

This plan grips, and thrills and fascinates in a way few productions on the screen or stage have ever done. And added to that, it is an artistic masterpiece. The picture is directed by James Young with a cast of unrivalled quality, to support Mr. Post. It is listed among the three finest pictures of the season and it is doubtful if there will be any to surpass it.

Supporting Mr. Post in this play are Edward M. Kimball, Ruth Sinclair, Herbert Standing, Lawson But, Marcia Manon, Barbara Tennant and Kenneth Gibson, all of which are well up in the motion picture game.

your home fireproof you should investigate these tile. They are warmer in winter and cooler in summer.

A living room, to be really, truly cozy, should have a fireplace and the Tropico Potteries exhibit shows you just the kind you want. Their tile is used for bathrooms or store fronts as well as fireplaces.

The Independent Lumber company has a splendid exhibit of various mouldings in soft woods, or materials for door casings or ceiling boards, and siding. These also add much to the interior finish of the home.

Another feature to be remembered in the kitchen is the range. Coker & Taylor displayed a Pacific gas range which would be a credit to any home. They also showed the Rund water heater, one of the best made.

The General Water Heaters corporation, put out a De Luxe automatic heater. This is their only product and it has many fine merits.

The National Incinerator Works at San Fernando furnishes a need in every home, especially if the yard is small. It will enable you to burn up rubbish without having it blow all over the yard.

Petriwood sinks and mantels should be by all means be used in a new home. The entire mantel front can be made of petriwood and it looks a great deal like tile. If the sink board is kept waxed or varnished, it will not show stains as some do, which is a great convenience.

The Inlaid Hardwood Floor company has a splendid display of many kinds of hardwood flooring. You can see just the kind you would want in your living room or bedrooms.

Frank B. Lash, painting contractor, makes a specialty of interior painting and he should be consulted in regard to your finishing. A beautiful home may be spoiled by the appearance of its windows. Stevens' paint store can help you solve this question, for they carry a full line of window shades, also wallpaper and paints, which are a necessity in any new home.

The lighting fixtures in your home add half the beauty. If your dining or living rooms are too brightly lighted, it takes away from the charm of your home. Before choosing your fixtures, you should see the display at Jewel Electric company. Their prices are most reasonable.

In fact, everything needed in building a home will be found at this exhibit and it is absolutely free to "mind builders." They are welcome!

WORLD'S LARGEST AIRPLANE COMPLETES TRIAL FLIGHTS

The biggest airplane in the world has been brought out for engine trials at St. Raphael, France's air station, on the Mediterranean. The machine is equipped with four motors of 270 horsepower each. The wings measure 94 feet from tip to tip, the machine standing 21 feet high. It is so constructed it can alight on either land or water and is intended for long-distance passenger service.

STATE EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION HAS L. A. MEETING

The 34th Annual Convention of the Southern California Editorial Association is being held at Los Angeles, September 25 and 26, with their headquarters at the Hotel Alexandria.

Their annual banquet was held Monday night and Mr. W. L. Taylor, Mrs. Cliff E. Thompson and Miss Alta Lovell attended from Glendale. Mr. Taylor and Mrs. Thompson represented the Glendale Daily Press.

A fine dinner was served, during which short speeches were made. Some of those who spoke were J. R. Gabbert, representing the Riverside Interprise; Rupert Hughes, Culver City; E. G. Lewis, representing the Atascadero News; Prudence Penny, the Los Angeles Examiner; Al C. Joy from Fresno; and Governor-elect, Friend W. Richardson.

Each of these splendid men spoke of the wonderful work being done for the country by the press. Following the banquet and talks, the showing of "Remembrance" Rupert Hughes' newest film, was shown.

Over 200 newspapermen from Southern California attended last night, and many of California's largest business concerns attribute their success largely to the newspapers of the state.

SUICIDED IN WIFE'S CLOTHES
LONDON.—Frederick Lionel Jackson, a merchant marine officer, dressed himself in his wife's silk stockings, underwear and boudoir cap and hanged himself to the ceiling of their bedroom at their house at Bath. It was testified at the inquest that Jackson had suffered terrible depression in the war, and in nightmares constantly relieved them.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

WE are learning more and more that co-operation is one of the chief elements of business success. It is the oil that keeps the great, complicated machinery running smoothly. Too many men have made the mistake of believing that they could rise to success only through pulling down those ahead of them, but in the long run, such a policy of selfishness and discord never pays. The elimination of this factor in a business organization is as necessary to efficient management and progress as the elimination of waste. In fact, success is waste, and co-operation is a fine type of business thrift.

The individual employee or member of a business organization should bear in mind that his own success must always be in proportion to the success of the institution to which his services are given. Thus as he co-operates with his co-workers to the common good he is benefiting his own fortunes and is in turn receiving the reciprocal benefits from his associates' endeavors. We help ourselves most when we help each other.

There is a rightful place in organized business for fair rivalry and competition among those who compose the personnel of any institution. There must always be the spark of initiative, and the incentives that lead to personal aggressiveness. Nothing is more deadly to business progress than a treadmill existence on the part of those who do the work, whether it be mental or physical. It is a part of individual thrift to cultivate accord and to practice co-operation with those with whom we associate in our daily duties. It is business thrift upon the part of executives to display these same qualities with their associates and to encourage them among their subordinates.

THE REFERENDUM

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This column will be devoted to signed propaganda relating to the various measures on the state ballot in November and other matters of like nature. Responsibility for statements herein lies with the authors whose names are signed. The space is limited.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—A poll of the newspaper editors of California just taken by the League to Protect the Initiative shows a majority of four to one against the proposal to increase the percentage of signatures required for initiative petitions concerning taxation from 8 percent—the present requirement—to 15 percent, as proposed in proposition No. 27 on the November ballot. Of 132 editors polled, only 26 would increase the percentage, while 106 favor retaining the present constitutional provision.

Candidates for all offices throughout the state were also polled, with the remarkable result that of 141 candidates polled only one declares for the change, while 140 announce themselves opposed to making the initiative more difficult for the people to exercise.

The league, which successfully opposed a similar amendment in 1920, when over 123,000 majority of the voters voted "no," maintains that the proposed increase would practically destroy the right of the common people to initiate legislation, leaving this privilege open only to powerful special interests, which alone would be able to secure the 200,000 signatures that would be required if proposition No. 27 were adopted.

Through the tariff rate on sugar adopted by the senate, it is proposed to grant an indirect subsidy amounting to nearly 2 cents on every pound of sugar produced in Hawaii, Porto Rico, Philippines, Louisiana and Domestic Beet at an annual expense to the American consumer of $200,000,000.

The late Wallace P. Willett, a recognized sugar statistician of many years' standing, when giving expert testimony before the Hardwick committee, stated:

"I would like to have the committee satisfied that any reduction of duty goes to the consumer, and any addition of duty is paid by the consumer, in any year, under any duty, which differs from any other duty, making necessary allowances for market fluctuations affected by supply and demand."

Is Believed Amundsen On Cross Pole Flight

Belief that Captain Raold Amundsen, arctic explorer, has started his flight from his ship Maude across the north pole, has been aroused by the statement that Captain Gottfried Hansen, noted Danish explorer, has been asked by the Danish government to carry fresh supplies to the place where Amundsen may be expected to land. Hansen had already prepared plans for exploring western Greenland and was unable to comply with the request, but another expedition was formed.

A NOVEL THEFT

BERLIN.—Police arrested a man caught in the act of tearing the heavy lithographed paper from billboards about the city. He had gathered up about 50 pounds of the paper, the sale of which would have brought him a neat sum in marks.

If you say you "lead a dog's life" you ought to specify the dog. Most dogs probably have an easier time than most humans.

RECIPES

FILLED COOKIES
One-half cup shortening, one-half cup brown sugar, creamed; add one-half cup light molasses, one beaten egg and one-fourth cup sour milk. Sift together three cups flour, one teaspoon each of soda and baking powder, cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon of nutmeg and cloves. Mix thoroughly and chill before rolling. Roll out thin and cut in strips about two by four inches, spread one-half with filling, fold over to form a square and bake. Filling: Nut meats of coconut mixed with honey and one teaspoon vanilla, few grains of salt.

SOFT MOLASSES COOKIES
One cup shortening, one cup brown sugar, one cup molasses, one cup sour milk, two teaspoons soda, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon ginger and cinnamon, one tablespoon vinegar, five cups flour. Cream shortening, add sugar, then molasses and sour milk. Sift three cups flour with soda, salt and spice.

Add first mixture with vinegar. Add balance of flour, keep dough soft. Chill over night. Roll in desired shapes and bake about 15 minutes.

CHOCOLATE CREAM CAKE
One-third cup shortening, one cup sugar, two eggs well beaten, one-half cup milk, one and one-half cups flour sifted with one-half teaspoon soda and one teaspoon cream tartar. Bake in large pans. Frosting: One cup sugar and five tablespoons cocoa mixed thoroughly, add one cup heavy cream, one-half teaspoon vanilla, stir until blended, cover and let stand hour or longer. When ready to serve, beat stiff and use as filling.

NORMANDY SAUCE
Cook skin and bones of fish with three slices of carrots, slice onion, sprig parsley, bit of bay leaf, one-fourth teaspoon pepper cones and two cups cold water. Boil 30 minutes and strain. When done there should be one cup. Make a

Don't Be Fooled

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain everyday business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks. Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly

WHEN a car owner runs across the best tire value he ever discovered he's bound to talk about it.

That's why so many motorists hereabouts have heard of the Hartford 30x3 1/2 "H" Tread at $10.65. And that's why so many of them are buying it.

A bigger tire money's worth than was ever before put out—and that covers over 25 years of good Hartford making.

ANALYSIS OF THE BIG FASHION EXPOSITION IN ITS LATE STYLE PRESENTATION

Close Up of the Pendroy Tuesday Afternoon Club Building Fund Exhibition of the Fashions of the Fall

Such a beautiful pageant of Fashion's realm as the Pendroy-Tuesday Afternoon club revue necessarily leaves one in some bewilderment, but a few outstanding things were made very clear—for example, that brown is the popular color, with black or dark blue for second choice; that favored dress materials are poiret twill, crepe and princess satin; that the Russian blouse suggestion is almost universal, adapted as it is to the long waistline and to meet the fullness creeping into the skirts, which is all inserted at the sides; that the garniture of dresses and coats, never more lavish of fine needlework in embroideries and braiding, follows long lines and does not disdain to use beads of silver, bronze and jet in combination with embroidery to make wonderful mosaics elaborately patterned that suggest the Orient; that the desirable coats are big.

It would not be possible to describe all the wonderful gowns, the magnificent coats, the beautiful hats interspersed with the simpler things that have a universal appeal but some were especially striking. Among the three piece suits, for example, was the brown broadcloth worn by Miss McQuoid with its low lined waist of velvet in Persian pattern of red and blue, the skirt oddly attached by points of the broadcloth running upward onto the waist. The short box jacket had a fur collar of tan caracul and odd pointed long fur pockets at the sides.

Another three-piece suit worn by Miss Sumner was of brown Pan de Laine. The jacket carried out the Russian blouse effect. The collar was of black caracul, and the wide straight sleeves trimmed with the same. It was belted with a cord terminating in tassels. The under dress was a slip following simple princess lines.

A three-piece costume worn by Miss Wakefield won much admiration by its richness. The outer garment was a long cape of midnight Bire cloth trimmed at intervals in vertical lines with Caracul. The under blouse was girdled with a rope of many colored strands of chintille, terminating in balls and affording just the touch of color needed. With it was worn an orange colored velvet toque smartly trimmed with a black jet pin.

There was a dark blue silk crepe artfully embroidered with bronze beads in diagonal lines which converged to a spider web pattern at the bottom of the skirt in front, the same pattern being repeated upon the bosom. The sleeves were short, wide and similarly beaded. This fetching gown was worn by Miss Wakefield, also a suit of maroon Marlene cloth. The jacket which was trimmed with braid was made in blouse effect and finished with black Caracul collar. This too was worn by Miss Wakefield.

A coat of black Modelle was embroidered in red and black in a pointed design running upward from the bottom of the coat. It had a loose cape back swinging free from the body of the coat, and Caracul cuffs and collar.

A navy blue poiret twill dress, the back of the blouse stitched in an all-over pattern in gold suggestive of braiding, with the pattern repeated in the vest and in a straight panel which descended to the bottom of the skirt was worn by Miss McQuoid.

Gray poiret twill dress, the long armhole of the blouse emphasized with embroidery in silver and green, the waist line indicated in the back by a loose belt clasped with a silver ornament, the front falling unbroken except as it was lifted at the side to meet the waist line belt and fall in the loose pleats that furnished the side fullness which marks the season's mode. This was worn by Miss Sumner.

A gown which though quiet in its dark blue coloring nevertheless suggested the garb of an Indian princess was a sheathlike slip of twill the sides emphasized by bands of a combination embroidery beads and of wool in French blue from top to bottom. The pattern was repeated in the sleeve which was faced with blue. This was displayed to advantage by Miss Crane.

Dark poiret twill gown, garnished with solid squares and circles of gold braid, the flaring sleeves faced with pale gold crepe de chine; plain skirt slightly full, the long waist indicated by a narrow girde tied at the side in loops; worn with pale gold slippers and hose, worn by Miss Stone.

Brown twill dress, the waist braided in all over pattern of self color, the skirt plain, worn by Miss Wakefield.

Taupe colored suit of Duve de Laine, the coat carrying out the Russian blouse effect, decorated with self colored embroidery and finished with brown beaver collar and cuffs.

Dark blue crepe, with sleeves brocaded in lighter blue and silver, pleated panels of the dark blue. Worn by Miss Crane with large black hat faced with blue and trimmed with ostrich tips of blue.

Poiret twill of dark blue very beautifully embroidered in silver beads in long lines, the sleeves straight, wide and closed, a narrow girde indicating the waist line. This was worn by Miss Rae.

Crepe afternoon gown of dark blue with cascade draperies at the side faced with Alice blue, ornamented with stitching and embroidery in shades of silver and blue.

Brown Canton crepe decorated with self colored embroidery in long lines, draperies lined with tan and caught at the left side with silver ornament worn by Miss Tayo.

Sand colored crepe gown, worn by Miss Sumner, the skirt embellished with finely pleated fan-like draperies flying loose, horizontal tucks across the back of the blouse; double girde.

Poiret twill of midnight blue, with winged sleeves, the back solidly embroidered in silver and black. Smart dark turban trimmed with gray monkey fur worn with it, displayed by Miss Wakefield.

Among the evening costumes was a very striking sheath gown made of black chiffon satin, which had been stitched in horizontal tucks about half an inch wide, the slashed flowing sleeve being snug at the top of the arm and falling free to show the jade green lining, the front of the skirt folding across from the right to the left side where it was fastened with a silver clasp with the points of the left side of the skirt drooping below it. At the throat was a simple silver clasp. This beautiful gown was worn by Miss Armstrong.

A most beautiful creation was an imported black sequin gown over black satin worn by Miss Wakefield, who carried with it a jade ostrich fan, the note of green repeated in her comb.

A tomato colored georgette evening gown worn by Miss Crane was embroidered with dark iridescent beads at the neck and sleeve ends and at the bottom of side panels on the skirt.

A regal evening wrap was a dark Gerona cape stitched and embroidered in black, a pointed panel running from neck to hem on each side widening as it reached the bottom embroidered and stitched with silver, bands of gray fox at the bottom and big blue fox collar. It was worn by Miss Tayo, who also displayed a very handsome coat of brown Bolivia trimmed with moleskin fur. Panels let into the sides were pointed at the bottom, the points paralleled with bands of the moleskin. With this was worn a turban of silver cloth.

Long handsome coat of black Lustrosa had a large flaring sleeve open at the bottom but gathered at the wrist and finished with moleskin cuff, moleskin also providing the collar. This was worn by Miss Sumner.

A long coat of navy blue Fashiona cloth, slightly gathered at the neck

J. B. GARSON TO BUILD ON BERAN PLANS

Signs Contract for $9,500 Home at 1421 East Broadway

Mr. J. B. Garson, formerly of North Louise street, has just signed a contract for one of those distinctive homes drawn and prepared by the S. S. Beran company, 305 South Brand boulevard, costing approximately $9,500.

This residence will be built at 1421 East Broadway and the prospective drawings and plans will be on the building site on or shortly after September 27 and the house will be ready for occupancy about Nov. 30.

S. S. Beran broke ground this morning. The house will have for its exterior a very unique California stucco, plate glass in living room window, front wall eight inches thick, patio wall three feet six inches of solid concrete with ornamental gate; fire place chimney will have an eight foot breadth, the roof will be mottled tile.

Exclusive built-in wall bookcases and telephone cabinet with insert seat in the wall, best of hardwood floors and plumbing fixtures, lots of built-ins of the very latest designs, tile sink and bath room, hand decorated walls in living, dining and bedrooms, cove ceiling in living room, elliptic ceiling in dining room with latest jazz plaster, electric switches are of tumbler design.

These plans have been given the very keenest supervision by S. S. Beran and were drawn by Mr. C. T. Palladine, his designer.

to fall in full, rippling lines; fox fur at throat and wrist, and a beautiful pattern of silk embroidery and applique running the length of the garment at the sides from hem to shoulder, was also displayed by Miss Sumner.

A maroon coat of Arbella, cloth embroidered in gold, brown and blue embellished with light gray fur collar, was worn by Miss Stone.

An evening coat of Copenhagen marvella with black caracul vest and collar was worn by Miss Wakefield.

Mrs. Pendroy stated this morning that all the costumes worn by models and musicians will be on display at the store on Wednesday for the closer inspection of all who witnessed the revue or those who were prevented from going.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

HAPPY, THOUGH ILL

"I declare it's just dreadful! To think of your being sick in nice weather like this!"

The aunt who had come to visit a niece in Montana, and found her ill in bed, hunched her chair over the bed and registered some sympathy.

"But aunt, it's not so bad as you seem to think. I am perfectly comfortable, and my doctor tells me that I am improving every day. I just sleep, and rest, and eat, and react to the best of my ability. It's really a happy season."

"React?" snorted the older man. "That's one of these new notions, I suppose, like daily baths and no flannels in winter and bobbed hair."

"I mean react to suggestions," the doctor said that if I would react myself under his care entirely and promise to believe in the things he ordered, and do the things he wanted me to do, I could be well in several weeks."

"Suggestion?" Is it hypnotism, a mean?" the aunt asked in tickled tones.

"Indeed no, I mean suggestions out food—and sleep and rest."

"Tut, tut. All nonsense. How any medicines is he giving you?" uttered the invalid's aunt, setting her glasses and peering about a room for bottles.

"None. I don't need any. I need rest and I am getting it. I was too foolishly nervous to sleep before, and too nervous to digest my food properly, and so I was undernourished."

"The woman who was 'reacting' to a common sense cure smiled restfully and sipped a glass of milk."

And her visitor, unconvinced, said, "What you need is a dose of bitters. Or some blood pills."

"All nonsense! Either you are sick, or you need medicine and rest, or you are not sick at all, and you should be ashamed of yourself, lying in bed with nothing wrong with you," the aunt said angrily.

"But I do have nursing. Mary has studied nursing during the war and she gives me the most wonderful blanket baths every morning and evening. Then I have a bowl of cooked meals a day and milk or cocoa in the middle of the afternoon and morning. I sleep ten hours at a time, and have a nap after my meals."

"Applying the Golden Rule. I am doing my part to help myself better. Its chiefly a matter of applying the golden rule. If I just lie here and worry about the household and the fact that the doctor isn't giving me any medicine, wouldn't I be foolish?"

"I think you'd be very sensible. What seems to be wrong with you?" insisted the aunt who believed in pills and powders and tonics, as well as blisters, and herbs.

"I was run down, as we say about our machinery. Isn't it strange? We oil and polish and clean out sewing machines, and tighten up the gears, and spend a lot of time and thought upon keeping our lawn mowers running, but we abuse the finest mechanism in the world—that of the human body, with all its little finely strung wires and fitted parts. And when it rebels and refuses to go until it has been laid up for repairs, we blame the doctor—or the weather, or the place we live in."

The woman who was "reacting" to a common sense cure smiled restfully and sipped a glass of milk.

And her visitor, unconvinced, said, "What you need is a dose of bitters. Or some blood pills."

WHAT IS POISON IVY? SOMEONE'S QUERIES

The Difference Between Harmful Wild Vines Is Designated

Many motorists who journey into the woods play with a beautiful clinging vine and then learn on their return home that they were fondling poison ivy, would save themselves a heap of trouble if only they would learn to know poison ivy when they see it.

The motorist may know the difference between poison ivy and the American ivy, or woodbine. The Virginia creeper is some-

Kipling Now Denies U. S. Interview

Rudyard Kipling, world-famous English author, emphatically denies the interview with him in which Clare Sheridan, famous English woman sculptor, quoted Kipling as saying America entered the war too late, quit too early and lost her soul, though she gained the gold of the world.

times known as woodbine, false grape or American ivy, and belongs to the grape family, whereas the poison ivy, although a vine, is of the sumac family.

No matter what form the poison-ous vine may take, its leaves are invariably grouped in threes. The leaf edges are always smooth, although often slightly toothed.

The leaves of the Virginia creeper, or harmless vine, always come in groups of five and all of the leaves are deeply indented on the edges. The berries of the harmless vine are a deep, clear green before ripening, when they turn to rich, dark purple. Those of the poisonous vine are livid white and grow in loose groups at the juncture of the upper side of the leaf stalk with the stem.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS FOR INEXPENSIVE ADDITIONS TO HOME COMFORT AND HEALTH—WITHOUT REBUILDING

Added Comfort and Conveniences Which Cost but Little ORIGINAL PLAN
Second Floor of a "One Bath Room" House Transformed Into a Truly Modern Home

The observations and investigations of health authorities, all point to the conclusion that the usual "one bathroom" dwelling provides bathing and toilet facilities that are insufficient.

Modern health education calls for frequent bathing—daily if possible. Bathing and toilet facilities, convenient enough to invite their use, are essential to household health.

Here's the second floor of an average dwelling transformed in matters of comfortable living, by inexpensive changes and additions of plumbing.

The added toilet and bathroom, with a shower for each tub, and the lavatories in each bedroom, have made this home easily twice as attractive as it was originally. To fully serve convenience and comfort, each lavatory should have a toilet and medicine cabinet above it.

Comparison of the two plans immediately shows that no convenience presented by the original is missing. On the contrary, with a minimum of alterations the new bathing and toilet facilities are in position. In this case, the fixtures used provided a practical and comfortable bathroom outfit in a very small space. Some leading manufacturers of such wares are providing complete high grade outfits that require space only five feet square.

The whole trend of living and housing conditions today is in a direction which forces the utmost occupancy of dwelling space. Yet too few of the dwellings already standing were built with such conditions in view. The only logical remedy is in the direction of making what is available more "livable" and more bathing and toilet facilities are consequently needed.

Coker & Taylor, Plumbing Dealers, 209 South Brand, will be glad to furnish full details and cost of above changes.

Far Seeing Home Builders

are rapidly becoming impressed with the Economical Claims of Brick Construction

There is a slight increase in initial cost over materials that require constant expenditures for preservation; but this is overcome in a few years by saving in insurance and upkeep, and the home is proof against the action of the elements.

CHINA OWES FEW BILLIONS ALSO

PEKIN. (By Mail).—China's inability to get a substantial loan, either foreign or domestic, at a time when she needs it seriously, is explained by a report of her financial status, compiled by Chinese and members of some of the legation staffs.

China owes in round numbers $2,000,000,000 and of this total, $440,000,000 is unsecured, or the security is wholly inadequate.

The remainder is secured by the customs, such salt revenues as have not been seized by the provinces, the railroads, and the telegraphs.

The largest single unsecured debt is to the Nishihara banking group in Japan, which loaned, without asking security, $150,000,000 when the Anfu or pro-Japanese government was in power.

A year ago the unsecured loans did not exceed $200,000,000, but since that time the provinces have seized the salt fields, Wu Pei-fu seized the revenues of the Peking-Hankow railroad and Chang Tso-lin seized the northern half of the Peking-Mukden railroad. Wu Pei-fu also seized a portion of the telegraph revenues. These government enterprises have had a measure of foreign supervision to insure reasonable efficiency, but the properties have been seized by the military despite the protests of foreign investors.

Just one good security remains, the customs. That source is under rigid foreign control and being established mainly in port cities accessible to foreign gunboats, is in little danger of seizure.

The customs is taxed to the present limit by foreign loans, only a small portion each month being available for the government. An increase of one and a half percent is soon to go into effect, but most of this increase, according to the Washington conference agreement, must go for liquidating the foreign debts.

At the lowest estimate it requires $3,500,000 a month to pay the country's bare administrative expenses and the government heads can find but $1,000,000.

The military expenses must take under any condition and this is nine-tenths of the whole governmental expense of China.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

TIMELINESS

It wasn't much of a thing he did,
A bit of blue when the sun was hid,
A kind word said in a friendly way
One time on a cold and stormy day.
It wasn't much of a thing to do,
The kindly word and the bit of blue,
And neither one was a mighty deed,
But the man they were done for was much in need.

It wasn't much of a gift to make,
Just something done for friendship's sake:
A hand on the shoulder, a word in the ear,
But the voice of sorrow was quick to hear.
It wasn't the size of the gift he made,
It was just that the very time he laid
The hand on the shoulder, a heart had need
And that's what made it so good a deed.

It wasn't the thing he did so much,
But its timeliness, and the friendly touch
Of an outstretched hand when a heart was sore
And needed that little thing the more.
It wasn't the bit of smile and sun,
It was more the time the thing was done,
For a tiny thing is a mighty deed
Sometimes when somebody's much in need.

So it isn't the deed that counts, I guess,
As much as its grace and timeliness,
It's the bit of bread when the hunger's keen,
In the desert hot it's the bit of green.
It's the bit of love in the empty heart,
It's the bit of sleep when the tired eyes smart.
And the great oak grows from the tiny seed
That love lets fall when a soul hath need.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

France After Next Olympic

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—France apparently has a sneaking notion that she has a good chance to win the Olympic championship in 1924.

Homer Baker, one of America's best runners, who is now director of athletics in the Canal Zone, was in Paris recently and he applied for the position of coach of the French Olympic team.

He was told politely that France was going to have a Frenchman in charge of her team, so that Americans could not take the credit away from a French victory with a comeback that an American coached them.

Mafer says that France has a couple of good young runners coming up and one good hurdler.

Sweden, according to reports, has been working a year with the Olympics in mind and after the present summer season will be ready to put a great team in the field, with two more years for further improvement. Sweden on the showing made at Antwerp will be America's most dangerous rival and a very formidable opponent.

Improvement shown in field athletics in the Scandinavian countries was shown recently when Huff, a Norwegian, cleared 13 feet 6 inches in the pole vault and established a new world's record. The pole vault has always been considered Uncle Sam's pet little event.

While all of the European nations are actively at work on the development of 1924 Olympic teams, the United States is all tangled up in a petty political fight over the management and selection of the team.

Down at the bottom of the fight is a controversy between the Y. M. C. A., which seeks world-wide control of all sports, and the Amateur Athletic Union, which has made some mistakes in the past, but which has been generally successful on a very difficult job.

The opinion seems to prevail that all required is to get heads together about March 1, 1924, pick a team off the record books and hunt for a boat.

Unless something is done, Uncle Sam is in for a bad disappointment at Paris in 1924.

Albert Hill, the veteran British middle distance runner, who was a double winner at the last Olympic games, is reported to have changed his mind about coming over for the big American indoor meets this winter. He says he would have accepted an invitation last year, but he has definitely and finally retired.

A. E. Edwards, the colored sprinter, who chased the American sprinters to the wire in Antwerp, is planning to come over, however, and Ed Mountain, the present British half-mile champion and the world's record holder for 500 meters, may come with him.

U.S. TRACTORS WORKING IN RUSSIA

WERETSCHAGINA, Russia (By Mail).—Here in the Ural, on a stretch of land covering 1500 desiatines (approximately 45,000 acres) twenty Americans, including 11 mechanics, are today performing pioneer work which some day will serve as a model for Russia's entire agricultural system.

With twenty-one tractors, the small American colony is working hard to till as much land for this fall's sowing as possible. In shift, they are working around the clock—18 hours—ploughing, four hours theoretical and two hours practical lessons for the neighboring farmers.

The practical lessons are being performed on the farmers' land, in order to create a favorable feeling among the farmers, who are inclined to regard these pioneers as enemies.

This stretch of land represents a fraction of the area owned by the Soviet state which holds about a total area of five per cent of the total Russian agricultural land.

The government leased to the company this stretch of land on a ten years contract, free of charge outside the regular natural tax.

The mine provides all the required material for the electrification of the whole area, the benzine, the mapha and the transportation. The superphosphate factory distributes entire production.

Today the Russian peasant uses artificial fertilizer very rarely and in small quantities. One of the main purposes of the factory is to make propaganda for the consumption of artificial fertilizer.

The ultimate aim of this company is to till all the 15,000 desiatines, which are needed to feed the 24,000 workmen of the coal mines and the equally expected number of factory workers. Sixty tractors are needed to till the 15,000 desiatines owned by the company. To transport the tractors a complete road had to be built along the seventy verst from the railway station to the farm grounds.

The American workmen receive $8 a day wages, while the Russian workmen are contented with 10,000,000 rubles or about $2.50 per day.

In olden times these farms belonged to the Czaristic administration, which in turn gave control to owners of large industrial plants for the purpose of feeding the industrial workers of mines and plants located nearby.

This particular stretch of land, for instance, always has been attached to the "Kiesel Kope," a coal mine which employs even today 14,000 workmen. This model farm is on the same level and offers the same condition as Texas.

In order to secure the feeding of its large number of workmen, the management of the Kiesel mine proposed to the American colony to go there and form a joint company. As a consequence a company has been formed between the Kiesel mine, the "first tractor basis" of American workmen and a nearby superphosphate factory, formerly owned by Prince Jussupoff, one of Russia's richest men.

GLEEWOOD FAMILY FURNACE SHOWN BY JERNEGANS

The Gleewood Family Furnace is a new household fixture that has been brought to Glendale and will be placed upon the market by Jernegan Bros., 104 South Maryland avenue.

In speaking of this furnace, Mr. Jernegan said: "Eastern people will appreciate the value of this furnace, for it is just like the old one-pipe furnace that has proven so satisfactory in eastern homes. The even distribution of heat, without sending the heat out in one short current makes the Gleewood Furnace a very desirable method of heating the home. I want everyone who intends to build to come in and see this furnace," said Mr. Jernegan.

GERMAN WATERS NOW CLEARED OF MINES

BERLIN.—The work of clearing the German seas of dangerous mines, planted during the World War, has been successfully completed without the loss of a single life.

German mariners, ending their three and a half year task, today announced that the 47,000 English mines, the 10,000 German mines, and the hundreds of Russian mines planted in the North and Baltic seas, have been taken from their water beds and that the seas are free again.

In February, 1919, German sailors began their hazardous work. Their first effort was to clear a lane wherein ships from Northern European ports, Kiel, Hamburg and Dantz, could safely ply.

only one automobile visible, and that one an 1896 Cadillac with entrance via the rear?

(c) Do the postoffices need the publicity the souvenir postal photographs give? Are they damaged by it?

(d) Is there truth in the allegation that the souvenir post card was originated by interests hostile to the railway mail clerks and letter carriers?

(e) Is there any justice in requiring a dozen federal employees to speed the delivery of a postal with a picture of a soldiers' and sailors' monument on one side, and the words, "Dear Lem: Arrived O. K. Love, Sarah," on the other.
